With New Toronto Office

TORONTO, Ontario — Burns & McDonnell, a 100% employee-owned engineering, architecture and construction firm, has expanded upon its presence in Canada by relocating its office to a larger space to support and foster growth in the region.

“Our local team in Toronto is built of high-performing professionals who are passionate about the work we do and who are dedicated to the clients we serve,” says Darcy Wagner, managing director of Burns & McDonnell Canada. “Here in Canada, the energy transition is underway, and our team is prepared to continue to support the projects that power our communities.”

The Toronto team has delivered planning, program management, design and construction of critical Canadian infrastructure across a variety of industries such as power generation, transmission and distribution, and food and beverage facilities. Additionally, they have expanded their service offerings by integrating a team of professionals from 1898 & Co., a part of Burns & McDonnell. Locally led by Rick Mena, 1898 & Co. is poised to advise, plan and consult with clients on their infrastructure investments.

“The collaboration and partnership with our clients and colleagues across Canada have positioned Burns & McDonnell for significant growth and impact in the coming years,” says Guillermo Zambrano, office lead and transmission & distribution operations manager for Canada. “We’re focused on bolstering our local presence so we can continue to strengthen Canada’s critical infrastructure for many years to come.”

Burns & McDonnell has been delivering infrastructure solutions in Canada for more than 80 years. After establishing an office in Calgary in 2012, the company opened an office in Toronto in 2016 and continues to support critical infrastructure needs across Ontario. “Burns & McDonnell has a rich history in Canada, and we’re excited for the future,” says Mike Brown, president of Burns & McDonnell International.
